BARRIER DOORS – STEP WELLS

---

OVERVIEW

Going forward, if a cab gets barrier doors, the customer will need to specify which of the following finishes they want the lower step well area to be covered in.

- Zolatone – to match the zolatone inside the cab.
- Raptor Skin – must specify black or gray.
- Painted – to match the exterior color of the cab.

There is no price difference among the three options.

In addition to the finish, there will be treadplate on the back wall of each lower step well. This will be standard.

There is an option to add treadplate to the side walls of the lower step wells.

Stainless steel plates will no longer be offered in the lower step wells, due to corrosion issues and warranty claims.
